

Some Dunedin Advances in Ecological Restoration.

Ken Mason Vice-chairman and Restoration and Youth Co-ordinator,
Dunedin Forest and Bird.

From humble aesthetic tree planting forty years ago by elderly people to today's involvement by children and young adults in full flora reinstatement, total animal control and fauna reintroductions. A personal account of six Dunedin Forest and Bird involvements, or influenced projects, followed from the days of limited outcomes to the successes being achieved by today's volunteers. Current restoration techniques being used, along with methods to train young future leaders in conservation and restoration, are explained.
